Every one appreciates the importance of understanding the properties of form and magnitude posthe selence built up so logically and satisfactorily from a few simple truths which uo mind can reject. We are troubled with up theories, but follow at every step a chain of reasoning that admits no dispute, and forms clear and correct habits of thought. The very fact that Geometry has been so well appreciated and studied for more han 2000 years makes it rather diffinlt to suggest ideas or at any rate ew ones, as to how it shall be taught. However as a paper on this subject was requested, it may not be out of place to give a dew simple rules that

First, I think that there is great aager in many cases of the words of the book being committed to memory without being fully understood. To obviate this, let the propositions cono draw their own lignres on the blackboard, designating the lines and nngles by different letters or numbers from these used in learning tiens. Itut the most effective way to prevent mechanical work is to require original demonstrations from the pupils. To this I will return after conidering a few other points. In thus making the whole subject a training for the reasoning powers, I refer of course to its he ing pursued by pupils from the discipline they get, the time in our lligh Schools. Our most recent text books give some elementary ideas of maxlma and minlma, Isoperimetry and use of the theory of Limits and Infinitesimals to a large extent, inetead of the 'Reductio ad absurdum.' Teachers using the older books might easily give this orally, to be worked up in note books by the class, nutd it seems to me it would amply repay the time and trouble required. Perhaps I am laying myself open to the objection that our pupils are too young to do such work, but it has been my expe perience that at 14 or 15 years of ago hey very soon learn to receive instruction by lectures and take an laterest in it. Of course more pains the line was formed at the depot, a must be taken in explaining and mere careful supervision of their note books uade than with those who are older it will probably be admitted that it is good practice for them, if they can du , and I think that most of them can. It is hard at first, but not more than all are capable of with a little assistance and encouragement, and the first problems given may be very easy. After learning the principal theorems about triangles, I have found that a period of 2 or 3 weeks spent almost wholly in original work makes a very great difference in their grasp of the subject and the ease with which they proceed. Covering the route between Philahelphia and New York within two urs and ten minutes, including some three halts of five minutes each, afferds little opportunity for observation. Yet one notes the tremendous energy of the genus Yaukee in the mile after mile of factory, foundery, workshop, and market garden, and finds himself instituting invidious comparisons with the still latent energy of the South. I saw tnore ladistry displayed within five minutes between Elizabeth and Newark than years, south of Mason and Dixon. The June meeting of this organization and at Tulke Library on Wednesday evening of this week, Elias Richards, pre-iding. Hrs. Martha J. Lamb, of New York, and author of the history of New York City, now in course of pu was elected an honorary member. Mrs.
Lamb is of Weymouth descent, being of the Nash and Reed families.

The following resolutions were passed a memory of one of its active members: in memory of one of its active members:
Since in the Providence of God, we are called to record the death of one of our members, Rev. George Dedoon, the first that has been taken from our number, we gladly bear our testimony to the worthiness of his character, his gentleness of spirit, his parity of life and the interest he exhibited in the welfare of the town in all its social, moral and intellectual concerns.

the town in a life telectual concerns.

Wa, also, tenderly acknowledge our own loss in this early death of our associete, cut off in the midst of his neefalness; and offer our hearty sympathy and condolence, to his family and friends in their great sorrow.

In addition Mr. Gilbert Nash prepared in addition Mr. Gilbert Nash prepared.

a brief biography of Rev. Mr. Dodson, which was placed among the papers of the Society. Rev. Mr. Titus, speaking upon the resolutions, bore testimony to the high worth and character of Mr. the people of his own parish, but also to the prevading esteem in which he was held by other churches. He had ever found him in conversation and life, whole hearted and generous in true o from New York.—How it supposes a stranger,—Coney Inland and its lights.—How the news from Chicago a bestrod at the Matropalis.

NEW YORK; June 8th, 1880. There can be no question but that this is a big city, with a big B. That is to say, if crowds, noise, excitement, urly, and a general disposition hurly-burly, and a general disposition upon the part of man and beast to lgore the existence of other men and costs, constitute the summit of earthly gmndeur, this ought to secure the premium. Whea tha perigrinating stranger is not engaged in dodging between loaded drays and crowded miscellaneous vehicles, keeping from under the feet of hurrylag pedcetrina, and resisting the persuasions of itinerant venders of every concel ynbiarticle of barter and sale, the occasion presents itself to observe that there must be a cheek to New York ambi tion, and to wonder when, where nuc under what circumstanees the ebeck aforesaid is to be accomplished. The clly appears to have been revolu-tionized by the Elevated railway. Hotels that were the best patronized five years ago, are nearly if not quite deserted. Resorts that were then ih most popular have closed their doors. and to the inquiry comes the ever ready response "Moved up town." During the business hours, the same jams and erama and crushes exist in the vielnity of Fulton, Wall, and Nusau, as ever, and all humanily appear absorbed in the pursuit of money get ting. After dark descriton reigns about the spire of Trinity, and should you seek the erowd, you must go le Union Square and he youd, lo lind li equally enthusiastle an the agreenbi occupation of meney spending. 'As for the "Elevated" It is at once if wonder and a delight. You mouai a flight of artistically winding stairs, enter an always waiting train, are whisked away before you have time to open your morning paper; and resto changel you are al Central Park ere you are fully aware that you have left Whitehall. You recall the once crowded horse-cars, when you hung to a greasy etrap nad endured two hours agony to reach the Park, and n gleam of sailsfaction oversprends your countenance at the thought that oue nuleance at least had been abated and thea you peer down below, and observe the celfame dlagy cars and melanchely horses, packed with swel-dirty sireets, and then the vast possibilitles of the great metropolis burst uddeniy upon yor. Yesterday was intolerably hel, so intensely so, that finding an hour or ao on my hands I bethought myeelf of Coney Island, where the cool sea breeze comea from the ocean and the apray from the ever throbbling surf permeates the air to that agreeable atmospherie degree that laduces the wearisome to sigh for the and sea wavce. I found Coney Island about six degrees hoiler than the hollest corner of Manhaltan island, and the journey thither was a mild reminder of a journey to the infernal regions. There were, I should say, from ich to fifteen thousand fellow sufferers on the spot, and I sincerely trust in charity, that they knew act why they were there. I could only imagine that the town was too cold for them and they had gone to the shore for warmth, or that they were seeking a spot where ne news from Chicago could reach them, ia order that the final result might burst suddenly upou them ou their retura, without the agony of hope deferred. Coney Island, with its glgantie hotels and in terminable restaurants, its legions of waiters and armies of har-tenders and lackles of every degree, and its myr iad of pleasure seekers, is in one word a gigautic fraud. Here one may secure the minimum of food at the maxluum of price, provided he can suc ceed in fixing the attention of a wnit er loug enough to enable him to grasp au ldea, which I consider extremel doubtful. Agslu was Woymauth favored with lovely day, when the sun rose Saturday aroming, the 5th inet., to irradiate many a shirt of red and shine on leathern ielia and humished braas. Oppreese by no undertone of sadnese as was Satnrdays week before, the voice of the and played a few pieces under direction people on this day could be raised in jubilistion over an event which for a brief Weymouth Band, producing a fine muperind crowded the exciting topic of the sical effect. Chicago Convention clean out of sight. n accordance with the programmie week, a procession was the first thing in order, and the fire enginee and compsmes were assembled at the Weymouth raliway atation on time; but owing to a casualty and the usual delays incident to paradse in general, the column did not move till after 11 A. M., when the ilne eded in the following order:

Martland's Band. Steamer No. 1, and Company.

Towa Officials, Invited Gneats, and Citfzene geaerally. The machines were beautifully decorsted with bouquets and garlands. " Old Mortality" cast humorous alings and srrows at the whole fire department by its derisivo mottoes, viz., "Hands off; newly varnished;" "Always ready, but not rellable;" "Our first Investigent, -old junk;" "Wig or bust," and the hanner, "Activa only in appropriating property." The tub af "220 ft." was, by an unforeseen accident, unabls to join in the procession, the horses suddenly taking fright at the depot, whon the hands struck up, and running across the track the pole was broken, disabilag the engine. A 7. Selection from "Bohemian Giri," good number of dwellings and business placee were decorated with flags, etc. and as the procession passed over the designated route the scene presented was one of peculiar brilliancy. Moving through Commercial street and Washing ton Square, up Front to Summer and Federal streets, thonce down Washington street, the procession countermarched in the Square, and after passing in review before the Board of Engineers and inviled greets, who were stationed on the steps of the Catholic church, returned to Lincoin Square, where a collation had been prepared in Clapp's Itali, about 500 plates being laid in the main hall, gailery and banquet room. The ladies of the place had labored eaionsiy and industriously in their eudeavor to provide a bountiful supply of good things for the table, and Alvah ilayurond, Jr., of South Weymouth, who furnished tho meats, (which included about 200 lbs. each of ham and corned beef), with his accustomed large heart-edness contributed at his own expense a holding 15 galious for bolier supply, and number of tongues and some 50 lbs. of eight feet extra of anction hose. The key to the situation remained from first to last with the scattering votes, and these scattering voles might so far as Blaine was co cerned, have been Grant, as Washburne, Windom and Edmunds. Thirty-four ballots having been east without altering the situation, it became expedient for the Blaine manngers to watch for the most acceptable break, but when the break came, it was Sherman and not Blaine who controlled the situation, and the votc of Ohio turned the scale In favor of nnother favorite son. The talk of upon the central thought of the concert, Blaine having sacrificed himself for the party, is the purest nonseuse. The Blaine manngers were at no mo ment in possession of the power to sacrifice him to advantage, and had the "dark horse" been any other than mence. It was an occasion long to be Blaine's defeat was caused through the inability of his leaders to grasp success at the moment when alone i was within their resch. It looks to me, from a careful observation of the proceedings, that that moment occurred on Thursday afternoon when through the delay in the report of the mittee wholly committed to illaino, they permitted the Grant strength to develope itself, and at the same time to show their own to be weaker thun any one, including themselves, imagined. Had this committee reported promptly, instead of permitting the liale's and Frye's ami Chandler's to waste the time in futile speech-maklng, there seems no reason why Mr. Hitaine should not have been nominated on Thursday before mldmight. The plans of the Grant leaders were obviously to gain time, to lniurpose delay, to stave off the su preme momeni, and the blundering conceit of Hale who preferred a bout with Conkllug, so limitensurably his superior as to call a pitiable smile at his temerity, to pressing his advantage with the convention, amounted to the supremest folly, and was prerisely the thing that the Grant leaders desired. Blaine is the Henry Clay of his generation, and like him, remains the idol of his party who seems fated to never become its l'resident. It is too soon to arrive at any defluite conclusion regarding the strength of the Chicago ticket. Much depends upou Cincinnuti on the 22d of June, and until that time all opinions can be little else than speenlative. To obtain a good view of the seal it is essential that you procure a beat and row out to where it is quartered—a fact which, by the way incurs the additional expense of 50 cents. The managers of the row boars evidently "saw the point" when they had the seal placed in lie cago in the middle of the lake.

Mr. J. D. Scadder, the genjal superintendent, was in constant receipt of telegraphic despatches from the rowing race at Providence, for the benefit of visitors who were interested. PROF. STARCH'S SUB AERIAL TRIP. Prof. Starch usually wore his overshoes when he went out, not only to keep his feet warm, but to prevent his slipping on the ley crossings and walks. But this morning, for some nnaccountable reason, he had neglected to put them on. It had been raining and thawing during the previous day, and during the night the wenther had turned suddenly cold, freezing the water in almost every place, before it had time to run off and find its level.

There was a high, steep hill that Professor Starch must descend. He had succeeded in arriving at the brow of the hill without serious hap. Boldly and with a dignified air he commenced the descent. He had but GEO.W.YOUNG, proceeded but a few steps, how ever, before his pedsi extremities suddenly slipped from underneath and he came down, full length, upon his cranium, in a very dignified manner, though the concussion threw off his stove-plpe, his wig and spec tacles. OR. AND MERS. ALANSON SHALS, ON TRI BATH OF THEIR ONLY SON, LITTLE PRED

O friends, within you quiet home A gloomy shadow rests to-day; For one sweet darling of your flock Has passed from earthly scenes sway.

His sanny amile you caonol see;
And so you mourn with heavy hearts—
Yet wherefore should your sorrow be? It he has entered yonder room,
Just through your well-known cottage door
And you were sure to follow soon,
Whene'er your numbered tasks were o'er,

And if you knew that room was free From sught of danger, pain or care, Would you repine because your boy itad been the first to enter there?

Ah i Itearen lies only just beyond
The narrow portals of the tomb;
And there the loved one waits for you Within that giorlous upper 100m. Theo weep no more, for "Atl is well !"
The darling child for whom you sigh

Is only just beyond your view,
And you will meet him bycand-bye. In future years, if you should see Thank God that your dear boy is safe Within the realm of perfect day.

The other afternoou in the pursuit of a distraction, I boarded the 3.90 express and journeyed over the Baltimore and Ohlo road to the Maryland metropolis. The trip of something within an hour without halting, led through a section of undulating, carefully cultivated fields, with here and there a quiet village with primitive southern aspect, through coolooking groves and far reaching woodlands, with market gardens and clvillzing industries increasing, as we passed Relay station and neared the banks of the Patapeco. One no ionger smiles over the conservatism which distinguished the Marylander of a former generation, whose persistence in old fogylsh ideas, removed the Baltimore ot 1850 from the third city in size and importance in the Union, to the sixth in 1870, and carried her still further down the liet ten years later. The close communion policy of the Baltimore and Ohlo road, whose interests have been ever inseparable with those of her eastern terminus, has ac last been broken by the tremendous energy with which the advance of her great rival, the Peansylvania company, has hirried the progress of events upon her until the need vance of her great rival, the Peansylvania company, has harried the progress of events upon her until the need of greater terminal facilities has compelled the expenditure of her vast means in the direction of resistance to competition. The result has been the creation of a huge improvement at Locust Point, whereby the long detested delay in the streete of Baltimore is avoided, and enormous elevamore is avoided, and enormous eleva-tors and warehouses, and miles of interlacing tracks and switches and idings demonstrate that the awakening has come in earnest.

There is moreover, a feeling as one stands upon the eleva-tion of Federal Hill and looks down upon the whole river hasin, around which the city's commerce is coacentrated and from which the effluvia of ten thousand odors is rising, that the perseverance and persistence which has rescued square miles of fens and marshes and unpromising bogs, and planted them thickly with oron and huge brick houses in the nidst of a great city is something worth admiring. There is something ubstaatlal, solemn, solid, serious, nbout this first and greatest of southern cities that impresees one with a feeling of intensity. Here converge two great railways whose stems are the hroad highways between east and weet, and whose leased lines culace and intertwine and cover the continent. Here is the end and alm of the yast coastwise trade whereby the spolis of southern waters are made to furnish a natural exchange for the product of northern fields, and mills and factories. Around Locust Poiat the huge interests of the Baltimore and Ohio road have created a vast industry that is exemplified by an area exceeding eighty acres, crowded with warehousee, wharvee, shops and with warehousee, wharvee, shops and about this first and greatest of south

Never before was the house so profusely trimmed, or the designs so varied and beantiful. Mr. George Hollis contributed some superb foral designs and baskets that would have done credit to any foral exhibition. One of the main features in the decorations was a large arch, which spanned the organ recess, resting upon two white columns, sniwined with evergreen and thickly studded with bright flowers. Upon the arch were inscribed the words, "There shall be but one fold and one Shepherd;" (the words having special reference to the representation by the S. S. Scholars in the evening.) In front of the arch and extending across the entire frout of the platform, a low facade was erected, consisting of four short columns with panel spaces between, the whole covered with a clear white ground. This was exquisitely ornamented with fine evergreen, interspersed with roses of the most brilliant and varied colors, while at various points, designs of crosses, anchors, and wreaths, were arranged with fins effect. The sermon abounded in plain practical trutha and touching liinstrationa of childhood and home life, which found their way to the hearts of a deeply interested audience.

In the evening the children of tha Sahbath School gave a fine rapresentation of the concert exercise entitled the "Good Shepherd." Some of the parts possessed peculiar interest, and were given in a manner that elieited the highest admiration of the audience. That peculiarly appropriate and ever beautiful gem, "The Kinety and Nine," was sung by Miss Annie Dean, in regard to which, we have no desire to attempt professional criticism. We simply say it was charming, most beautiful, and with har exquisite voice it seemed to give ns the very soni of music. The singing of Miss Nsilie Pratt was in her best style, and never sounded better. There was a degree of expression and trenuious soltness in her tone, peculiarly adapted to her subject, which her friends always delight to hear. Miss Dora Derby presided at the organ, and (for the first time in public) gave us a specimen of her sbillity as an organist, and we must say that her playing gave the fullest assurance to her friends that she will make a very superior performer. The children sustained their part admirahly, and not only gained great credit to themselves, but reflected much upon those who had them in training.

the invitation of Mr. Whicher to visit his cottage at Hough's Neck had a most gloioue time. The early part of the afternoon was spent in drilling, under the ef-ficient command of Major Shaan, Capain Garey and Colonei Porter. The shooting at the smoke ball was very ac curate, especially that of the Weymouth team, which consisted of Meisrs. B. F Locke, J. H. Clapp, and your correspondent. Only one hall each was missed by these marksmen. Later, Mr. Clapp gave a fias exhibition of piatoi shooting; showing aperfect control of the bail; aiming at our thing, and compelling the ball to hit another. At the close an excellent support was next along it has ing the ball to hit another. At the close an excellent supper was partaken of; then after puffing an Havana, the party started for home, making the air resound with cheers for Sir Knight Whicher, and the Quincy delegation.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

BALTIMORE BREEZES.

Now the Maryland metropolic is im-proving,—Some views and retrosposts from Federal Mill.—A breakfast table chat.—How the Chicage tickes is being received,—Credit mobilier explained.

The other afternoon in the pursuit of a distraction, I boarded the 3.30 express and journeyed over the Baitimore and Ohio road to the Maryland metropolis. The trip of something within an hour without halting, led through a section of undulating, carefully cultivated fields, with here and there a quiet village with primitive southern aspect, through cool looking groves and far reaching woodlands, with market gardens and elvillizing industries increasing, as we passed Relay etation and neared the banks of the Patapaco. One no longer emiles over the conservatism which distinguished the Marylander of a former generation, whose persistence er emies over the conservation which distinguished the Marylander of a former generation, whose persistence in old fogyjah ideas, removed the Baltimore of 1850 from the third eity in size and importance in the Union, to the sixth in 1870, and carried her still further down the list ten years lator. The close communion policy of the Baltimore and Ohio road, whose interests have been ever inseparable with those of her esstern terminus, has at fast been broken by the tremendous energy with which the advance of her great rival, the Pennsylvania company, has hurried the progress of events upon her until the need of greater terminal facilities has compelled the expenditure of her vast means in the direction of resistance to competition. The result has been the creation of a huge improvement at Locust Point, whereby the long detested delay in the streets of Baltimore is avoided, and enormous elevant more is avoided, and enormous eleva-ors and warehouses, and miles of nterlacing tracks and ewitches and has come in earnest.

ing has come in earnest.

Baltimore pristically considered, is not that thing of life and beauty that delights the eye, or holde the sensea. Her detectable system of surface drainage, whereby one crosses the elde streets as tho he wore on involuntary stilts, no less than the ridleurer arrayments of the thoroughfares. lous narrowness of the thoroughness, detract from her outward appearance uo less than add to the anxiety of the visiting pedestrian in the fear that he is intruding upon the privacy of the citizen. There is moreover, a feeling as one etands upon the elevation of Federal Hill and looks down upon the whole river basin, around which the city's commerce is concentrated and from which the effluvia of ten thousand odors is ricing, that of ten thousand odors is rieing, that the perseverance and persistence which has rescued square miles of fene and marshes and unpromising bogs, and planted them thickly with interest in the miles of the miles of a great city is comething worth admiring. There is something substantial, solemn, solid, serious, about this first and greatest of couth-ern elties that imprecees one with a feeling of intensity. Here converge two great railways whose atems are the broad highways between east and weet, and whose leased lines enlace and intertwine and cover the continent. Here is the end and alm of the vast coastwise trade whereby the spoils of southern waters are made to furnish a natural exchange for the product of northern fields, and milts and factories. Around Locuet Point the huge interests of the Baltimore and Ohlo road have created a vast industry that is exemplified by an area exceeding eighty acres, crowded with warehouses, wharvos, shops and sheds, with thousands of workmen and smoke from a hundred furnaces. Two enormous elevators erected on

In fact he managed to talk the matter over with ail of them, and made memorandss of his conversations for future use. Some took the bait and made hourst invesiments; others would, but hadn't the money, and Ames agreed to earry the stock others would, but hadn't the money, and Ames agreed to earry the stock for tiem until they were ready to take it; still others thought they would invest, but after sleeping ovor it concluded not to, and dropped the matter from their minds. Just about this timo McComh thought Amee wasn't playing fair and sued him for a lot of the etock that he had forgotten to account for. Ames elaimed

It was Ames' word against Garfields; that le, the word of a con-ford bether of Congression against farfields; that is, the word of a con-fessed briber of Congressmen, against that of of a man whose character was pure and unimpeachable. cil of interrogation. I inquired, smong other things, how the Chicago ticket was striking the average southern voter.

"Decidedly," said he, "with amazemant. I don't think they have fairly recovered from their surprise and am not at all certain whether time will improve the situation. I rather imagine we had better leave the south out of the question this time, for if we carry anything south of Mason and Dixor I shall be agreeably disappointed. You see the southern republican axpected Grant, and he is inclined to be anriy over his disappointment. It has been a pet theory with him for the past four years, that when Hayes withfers whe troops from the South, he abandoned the republican party to its fate and rather encouraged their personal, no less than to something like a fair chance. It was a bitter disappointment, I can assure you, to the southern republican when he learned that instead of Grant, he must have some ona he had carrely heard of."

"But leaving the South, as you say, out of the question, do you think the ticket a winning one?"

"But leaving the South, as you say, out of the question, do you think the ticket a winning one?"

"On the whole, yes. It is a ticket that improves with time. Garfield is undoubtedly a etrong candidate and will poil the full strength of the party in every northern state, and will I think, with the assistance of his second, give us New York easily. I don't imagine he will have any serious trouble in defending his record. CLASS HYMN By Minnie E. Hund, clast of '51.
Time, with its ever rapid flight,
Ilas brought us to this day,
When we must part from those we love,
And tread lief's onward way.
Together we have persevered
That we might drink of thee,
O fount of knowledge, pure and bright,
That flows so full and free.

That flows so full and free.

Dear teachers, much we owe to you

For all your watchful care:

You, who so bravely led us on,
And bade us not despair.

And schoolmates, tread the upward way;

Press on, and never fear;

Toll slowly, surely up the mount,

The top will seen appear.

The top will seen appear.

Classmates, gird on your armor bright,
Life's battle to begin;
And may we strive with one accord
The victory to win.
But though we must be parted here,
May we when life is o'er,
Meet in that land, that happy land,
Where partings are no more. Chas motto: Non est vivere, sal valere vita.

Sabhath School gave a fine representation of the concert exercise entitled the "Good Shepherd." Some of the parts possessed peculiar Interest, and were given in a manner that elicited the highest admiration of the audience. That peculiarly appropriate and ever beautiful gem, "The Ninety and Nine," was sung hy Mias Annie Dean, in regard to which, we have no desire to attempt professional criticism. We simply say it was charming, most beautiful, and with her exquisite voice it seemed to give na the very soni of music. The singing of Miss Neille Pratt was in he best style, and never sounded better. There was a degree of expression and tremutous soitness in her tone, peculiarly adapted to her subject, which her friends always delight to hear. Miss Dora Derby presided at the organ, and for the first time in public gave ns a specimen of her ability as an organist, and we must say that her playing gave in the fullest assurance to her friends that she will make a very superior performer. The children sustained their part admirably, and not only gained great credit to themselves, but reflected much upon those who had them in training.
